Camp to the Three Sisters in Four Days

Four walking days on a clear, well-marked trail. Camp, Annascaul, Dingle, Dunquin, Ballydavid — every key village along the southern and western coast covered.

The Slea Head Drive on Foot

Beehive huts, ringforts, the Three Sisters cliffs, the Blasket Islands offshore. The kind of landscape Star Wars and Ryan"s Daughter were filmed in — and far more…

Sybil Point and the Wildest Stretch

Day 5 is the showpiece — north out of Dunquin around Sybil Point with the Atlantic on three sides, then east along Smerwick Harbour with the Three Sisters cliffs above…

Finish at Ballydavid (Cuas)

A small fishing harbour at the foot of Mount Brandon, with one good pub (Tig Áine), a quiet pier, and the kind of remote-Atlantic feel you"d normally have to take a…

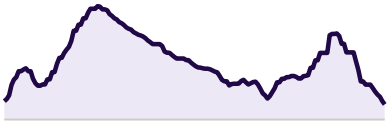

Day by day

Elevation, 0 to 400 m · Moderate · Challenging

1 Arrival in Camp. Arrive in Camp and settle into your first accommodation — a small village on the eastern shoulder of the Dingle Peninsula and the traditional starting point for the Dingle Way. Camp has a couple of friendly local pubs (Junction Bar and Ashes are…

Overnight Camp

DAY 2

17.8 km · 407 m up · Moderate

Camp to Annascaul

Your first walking day, west out of Camp through traditional sheep country to Annascaul. The trail rises gradually onto the southern shoulder of the Slieve Mish Mountains, with sweeping views back across Tralee Bay and forward into the heart of the peninsula. Quiet boreens, stone walls, occasional hawthorn — Kerry as it actually is. Annascaul itself is a small inland village best known as the home of Tom Crean, the Antarctic explorer. The pub he opened on his return — the South Pole Inn — still pours pints under his portrait, and is the obvious place for dinner tonight.

Overnight Annascaul

DAY 3

22.5 km · 387 m up · Challenging

Annascaul to Dingle

The big day — a long, beautiful crossing south-west to Dingle town. The trail climbs gently over the southern flank of the Slieve Mish Mountains, then descends gradually through farmland and the village of Lispole into Dingle harbour. The first sight of the harbour as you come down off the high ground is one of those Irish moments that genuinely stays with you. Dingle town is Ireland"s most beloved harbour town — traditional music every night, exceptional restaurants, dolphins in the bay. Tonight, find a seat at Dick Mack"s, John Benny"s or O"Sullivan"s Courthouse for live music with your dinner.

Overnight Dingle

DAY 4

21.3 km · 373 m up · Moderate

Dingle to Dunquin (Slea Head)

The showpiece coastal day. West out of Dingle through Ventry, then onto the famous Slea Head Drive — beehive huts, ringforts, the Three Sisters cliffs, and the long sweep of Coumeenoole Beach where Ryan"s Daughter was filmed. The light here is what brought David Lean to Kerry in the first place. You finish in Dunquin — the westernmost village in Europe, with the abandoned Blasket Islands offshore. The Blasket Centre on the cliffs is well worth a visit if you have time, and Krugers" pub by the harbour ramp is one of the most genuinely remote bars on earth.

Overnight Dunquin

DAY 5

22.8 km 163 m up

Moderate

Dunquin to Ballydavid (Cuas Feohanagh)

The wildest section of the entire Dingle Way. North out of Dunquin around Sybil Point with the Atlantic on three sides, then east along the long curve of Smerwick Harbour with the Three Sisters cliffs rising to your right. Cliff edges, bog road, ancient ogham stones, and the kind of empty country you''d normally have to take a ferry to find. You finish in Ballydavid (Baile na nGall) — a small fishing harbour at the foot of Mount Brandon. Tig Áine on the pier is a memorable last stop, with seafood off the boats and views west across the Atlantic. Tonight, sleep with the ocean as your front garden.

Overnight Ballydavid / Cuas

6 Departure from Ballydavid. A leisurely morning. A last full Irish breakfast. A last look at the Atlantic. Ballydavid is roughly 90 minutes by road from Tralee station and a similar drive to Kerry Airport. We can arrange a private transfer for the morning if you''d prefer — just let us know with your booking.

18 to 23 km	1,330	4
a day	m of climbing in total	walking days

Walkers who want the Dingle Peninsula at a sensible pace. Six days, four walking days at 17–23 km. Long-ish days but on rolling rather than mountainous ground. Every important village covered, with one extra section past the famous Slea Head Drive into wilder country. Couples and friends planning a real week away. The pace lets you arrive without rushing, walk four real days, and finish in genuinely remote country at Ballydavid.
